

Simón Brand

Simón Brand is an accomplished film and television director with over two decades of experience in the industry. Born and raised in Colombia, Simón discovered his passion for storytelling at a young age when he shot his first music video for a popular band, and then on to win an MTV Award for his first collaboration with Shakira. Throughout his career in the film industry, he gained recognition for his unique visual style and ability to bring sensitive stories to life on the screen.

Simón has since directed more than 200 commercials for brands like Coca-Cola, Nabisco, BMW, and a range of music videos for top artists like Ricky Martin, Shakira, Jessica Simpson, Maluma, Enrique Iglesias, and many more. His work has earned him five Grammy Awards nominations for Best Music Video, three MTV Awards, four Telly Awards, and a few Cannes Lions.

After finding a calling in film and TV, he embarked on his first feature film UNKNOWN, a thriller starring Jim Caviezel, Greg Kinnear, and Joe Pantoliano. Soon after came the massive success of his second film Paraíso Travel, breaking all box office records in Latin America and winning more than a dozen awards and festivals. His most recent film, Default, stars David Oyelowo as a Somali pirate who hijacks a plane in Africa.

Brand has an impressive portfolio of work as a showrunner and director. He worked on the dance-driven drama Savage Rhythm for NETFLIX, directed and produced GOYO's HBO Special, and directed two episodes of NBC Universal's Law and Order: Organized Crime. Recently, he was the showrunner and director for the new music series Thalia's Mixtape on Paramount+. Currently, Brand is collaborating on a new documentary series in development at NETFLIX.

Chosen by Variety Magazine as one of the most influential Latinos in Hollywood, he is known for his ability to collaborate effectively with actors, writers, and producers to bring compelling stories to the screen.
